Pomeranian
10 Years Old

January 2011

I have a Pomeranian that is over 10 years old. He had been suffering from decreased urination so I had taken him to the veterinarian for assistance. The vet told me that he believed it to be caused by an enlarged Prostate and that castration needed to be done. Trusting him, I agreed. His urination symptoms did not improve and now he is suffering with swollen genitals, decreased mobility, increased pain, constant whimpering and decreased eating and drinking. The dog did not move for 24 hours after the procedure. I brought him in for Light Therapy treatment and he immediately showed improvement. He began to move around more freely, with less pain and urination began to return to normal. I came back for another treatment two days later and the improvement was even better, increased movement and he showed to have more energy. One week later, the last treatment, my precious dog was back to normal, happy, excited and vibrant.
